An Afternoon of Assistance with Your Irish Family History Research

After a brief get-together to discuss any new developments in Irish genealogy (e.g. finds in the release of the 1926 census for the Irish Free State), this meeting of the Irish Interest Group will be devoted to assistance with your Irish family history research. We will use either the APFHC terminals linked to several subscription sites or your own laptop to access a range of free Irish sites. This should provide an opportunity to make real progress on your Irish research. Make sure that you bring along information to allow the helpers to assess your progress so far to allow them to suggest your next steps.

All welcome, with experienced researchers especially required for this meeting to assist those starting out or trying to break down their brick walls. For information about the group see
